Forest Notes.

The Balkan War has brought about a rise in certain lumber prices in Europe because of the big demand for wood for ammunition boxes.

Dogwood, the principal source of shutters for use in cotton mills, is growing scarcer year by year, and various substitutes are being tried, but with no great success.

The officials of the Yosemite National Park are cooperating with the forest officers of the Stanislaus and Sierra national forests for fire prevention and control in both the park and the forests.

Experiments with a tree planting machine at the Utah Agricultural Experiment Station indicate that it may be used to advantage in reforesting old burned areas on the national forests.

The leading forest schools of the country, not only have their own forest tracts for continuous experiments, but give their students actual experience in the woods by having them take part in big lumbering operations.

FARMERS' WIVES AND WORK

Government Official Seems to Cast His Vote for Pigs' Feet As Against Women.

A gentleman of the national agricultural department complains because the women of the farms do not work as hard as they used to.

This is a serious charge, indeed. It may develop that, aside from getting three or four meals a day, milking the cows, feeding the chickens, tending the children, darning the socks, making most of the kids' clothing, and keeping the house in order, the farm wives have nothing to do.

Of late years much has been done by the farmers themselves to make life on the farm less burdensome to women. The social side of farm living has been emphasized with the disappearing necessity of pioneer hardships.

The agricultural gentleman in Washington now views all this with alarm. The old home products of pickled pigs' feet, soups, preserves and dried fruit are passing because of "the lure of society" and the unwillingness of "the women of the farmers' families to repeat the manual labor of their grandmothers."

Between the women and the pigs, the gentlemen of the agricultural department casts his unanimous gentlemanly vote for the pigs. —Kansas City Times.

APPEAL MADE BY THE "FIZZ"

Seductive Bubbles. Add Charm to Soda Fountain as 1 to Other Drink.

Few things appeal to us and capture our fancy like a bubbling spring. As it comes sparkling out of the cool depths of the earth, it smiles up at us in the friendliest way, like some shy, living creature, inviting us to come and slake our thirst. The mere sight of a spring usually makes us thirsty at once, no matter how recently we may have filled up on tap-water or well water.

No little of the charm of the soda fountain is due to the rush and bubble and sparkle of its stream, as it pours hissing and swirling and foaming into the glass. And who can tell how much of the fatal seductiveness of equally effervescent but less innocent beverages, with their crimson sparkle or creamy foam, or "purple bubbles winking on the brim," may be due to their hypnotic appeal. Our fascinated eye, as we "look upon the wine when it is red, when it moveth itself aright?"

Certain it is that the most popular and irresistible liquors, from lowly lager to lordly champagne, are those that sparkle and foam and bite, with the keen fresh tang of carbonic acid gas. Even whisky has to be mixed with something sparkling, "soda" or "Polly," in order to make it attractive to the eye or even to the palate, except of the educated or jaded minority.

No small amount of the charm of "fizzy" drinks, whether innocent or hurtful, lies in the "fizz." The motto: "All fizz abandon, ye who enter here!" over the door of every saloon and bar, if enforced, would weigh sound the death knell of drunkenness.—Dr. Woods Hutchinson, in Everybody's Magazine.

THAT FEELING

Mildred—It's in the winter that I long for wealth and its luxurious comforts—just the time you need them most.

Harold—I feel the same way in the winter, and also in the spring, the summer and the fall.

LOSING FAITH IN EDITORS.

Old Lady—I don't believe this sure-cure tonic is a-goin' to do me any good.

Friend—It's highly spoken of in the papers.

Old Lady—Yes; but I've taken forty-seven bottles, and I don't feel a bit better. I tell you what it is, Sarah, I'm beginning to think these newspaper editors don't know everything.

NO OTHER KIND.

"Larry, have you any fresh eggs this morning?"

"Yes, sir; all my eggs are fresh."

"How do you sell them?"

"Depends on the grade. Which will you have—fresh, strictly fresh, or guaranteed?"

WELL MATED PAIR.

Manager—I am looking for a man I can trust.

Applicant—And I'm looking for a man who will trust me. We ought to get along fine.—Boston Evening Transcript.

FIRST TRIP OF THE SEASON.

"Been fishing, Jimmy?"

Bella—I wouldn't marry him if he was the middleman.—Puck.

"The LIFE of a wagon is what counts—that's why I buy a Studebaker"

"That's reasonable, isn't it?"

"A wagon that doesn't last is expensive no matter what price you pay for it."

"Suppose you buy three wagons, one after the other, and the three of them don't last as long as one Studebaker—which is the best bargain?"

"I didn't find this out myself. I heard my grandfather say it a good many years ago. He said he had proved that it paid to buy a Studebaker. I followed his advice to my own satisfaction."

"A wagon can't have life in it unless it has the material and work and finish in it. The Studebaker people have been making vehicles for sixty years. They ought to know how to make wagons right—and they do. They have the reputation because they've produced the goods. They don't put the name Studebaker on until the wagon's right, and when you see the name Studebaker on a vehicle of any kind it is your insurance of quality."

"That's why I buy a Studebaker. I trust a Studebaker wagon because I trust the people that make them. It's good business."

"A Studebaker promise is always made good."
